Archery – There were two bouts consisting of a 15th century Mamluk mounted warrior target for the first bout. This was followed by a Tibetan target shoot at triangle shaped targets.

Rapier – The tourney consisted of a set up of 4 tables with items on the table that could be used for off hand defence. The tables acted as barriers that the combatants had to fight over.

Armoured combat – This tourney consisted of two keeps separated by a curtain wall which was marked out on the ground with rugs.
